President Still Wearing Fighting Clothes Put on at Des Moines.

ASSAILS FOES' PLANS

Calls Democratic Program Unsafe, Menace to Trade Recovery.

By The Associated Press

ON BOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL, ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—President Hoover made a campaign tour today out of his return to Washington from Des Moines, where last night he told a cheering audience that "a great national victory has been achieved" in the "war" against the "economic storm" and said the Democratic program was marked by "reckless disregard of the safety of the nation."

The chief executive, in a series of rear platform appearances through Indiana and Ohio today, resumed the offensive in his campaign for reelection which he assumed last night when he told the nation that the legislation proposed by Democrats in the last session of congress, if ever enacted, "will end hope of recovery."

This program, the President said, was approved by the Democratic party when it nominated Speaker Garner for vice president.

At once point in his speech, when the President was outlining what he called the Democratic "program" proposed in the house during the last session of congress, as a result of which he said he vetoed several measures, a member of the audience yelled: "Give 'em hell."

The President halted his address, smiling broadly for fully half a minute.

Frequently Aplauded

A crowd which filled the 8,000-seat Des Moines Coliseum interrupted Mr. Hoover many times with applause during the hour and a half of his speech in which he said "we have won this battle" against economic forces and enunciated 12 policies or proposals of aid to agriculture.

Several times during his speech,

Reports Bring Hoover Rebake

FORT WAYNE, IND., ON BOARD PRESIDENTIAL SPECIAL, ENROUTE WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—President Hoover today characterized as "deliberate, intolerable falsehoods" any suggestion that he had not done his best for the American people during the depression.

He made the statement over a Fort Wayne radio station.

The President said he had received reports of "wide spread personal misrepresentations" through the middlewest.

"I regret," he said, "that the character of these personalities necessitates a direct word from me.

"I shall say now the only harsh word that I have ever uttered in public office. I hope it will be the last I shall have to say.

"When you are told that the President of the United States, who, by the most sacred trust of our nation is the President of all the people, a man of your own blood and upbringing, has sat in the White House for the last three years of your misfortune without troubling to know your burdens, without heartaches over your miseries and casualties, without first summoning every avenue of skilful assistance irrespective of party or view, without using every ounce of his strength, and straining his every nerve to protect and help, without using every possible agency of Democracy that would bring aid, without putting aside personal ambitions and humbling his pride of opinion, if that would serve—then I say to you that such statements are deliberate, intolerable falsehoods."

Hoover in Brief Halt at Bucyrus

President Hoover stopped for a brief train platform appearance at Bucyrus at 2:40 p. m. today on his return trip to Washington, D. C. The stop was limited to only a few minutes as the presidential train was behing schedule.

Several thousand persons gathered at the Pennsylvania station in Bucyrus to see him.

The next stop was to be made at Crestline where locomotives on the special train were to be changed. Approximately 30 Marion residents, including Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr., were in Crestline to await the arrival of the President.

Several other communities were to catch glimpses of the President as he sped eastward. He stopped a short time at Lima, and other stops were scheduled for Mansfield, Massillon, Canton and Alliance.

WYANDOT CO. SEAT SHARES IN FEDERAL FUND

Early Start on Upper Sandusky Structure Assured by Appropriation.

ANNOUNCED BY MOUSER

Old Municipal Building To Be Replaced; Government To Buy Site.

Funds for a new federal building in Upper Sandusky will be provided by an emergency building fund to aid unemployment set up during the closing hours of the last session of congress in an amendment to the reconstruction finance corporation bill, it was announced today by Congressman Grant E. Mouser, Jr.

This, it was explained, will make available in the near future the funds which otherwise were scheduled to be appropriated by congress in its next session in December. Work on the new building was assured an early start by Upper Sandusky being included in the cities to share in the emergency building fund, the congressman said.

Will Receive $51,000

Upper Sandusky will receive approximately $51,000 of the $100,000,000 building fund in the only allocation given to the Eighth district.

There were demands throughout the country totaling $154,000,000 with only $100,000,000 available, so Upper Sandusky was fortunate in being selected to participate in the fund, Congressman Mouser said.

Negotiations for the sale of the site of the Upper Sandusky municipal building on West Wyandot avenue to the government as the site for the new federal building are now under way.

Will Replace Old Structure

It is planned to replace the municipal building, now 75 years old, with the federal building, and to erect a new municipal building with the proceeds from the sale of the federal building site.

A non-partisan committee of citizens of Upper Sandusky and municipal officers assisted Congressman Mouser in his efforts to obtain part of the emergency fund for Upper Sandusky, he said.

FOREST FIRES WREAK HAVOC

One Oregon Town Destroyed, Three Others Threatened by Roaring Flames.

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 5—Forest fires roared through western Oregon and southern Washington today, threatening to destroy three small towns. Flames had already left one Oregon town in ashes and destroyed half a dozen buildings in another.

The deserted mill town of Wendling in Lane county, central western Oregon, still stood today as 2,500 men fought flames that threatened it. Residents had fled.

Amboy, a little town in southwestern Washington about 40 miles north of Portland, was virtually ringed by flames that had swept over thousands of acres of timber and brush land and destroyed several farm homes. Fear was felt for the safety of six families which determined to fight the mile-wide path of fire to save their homes. The town of Cochran was nothing but ashes. Its 300 residents fled. In the same county 15 houses in the Bales creek country were destroyed.

Forest service officials said they believed rain would be the only effective check against the flames. The weather bureau forecast continued dry weather.

Although hundreds of lives have been imperiled by the fires, only one has been lost. Damage in the Cochran area alone was estimated by fire fighters at more than $2,000,000.

BOBBIE WEEPS AS SHE GETS DIVORCE

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 5—Victory in a divorce suit against Johnny Weismuller, world-famous swimmer, brought only tears to Bobbie Arnst, musical comedy star.

Shortly after winning the divorce after charging ill treatment, the actress stepped into the private chambers of the judge and with tears streaming down her face, returned her wedding ring to the mikado.

"It is the very first time I have taken it off since Johnny placed it on my finger."

Republicans Open 8th District Campaign Here

U. S. Senator Fess Points to Hoover as Greatest Peace-Time Leader in Address at Hotel Harding.

President Hoover was described as the country's greatest peace-time leader by United States Senator Simeon D. Fess in an address to 150 Eighth district Republicans in Hotel Harding last night. The meeting launched the Republican campaign in the district.

Assailing those who have charged the administration with lack of leadership, Senator Fess detailed a series of national and international problems in which President Hoover has taken the leadership. He praised his courage and decisive action.

The senator's address followed the radio reception of President Hoover's Des Moines, Ia., address, before which short talks were given by Congressman Grant E. Mouser Jr., C. H. Lewis of Harpster, Republican state campaign manager, Miss Gertrude Jones of Findlay, Eighth district committeewoman, and Fred W. Warner, Eighth district committeeman. Several other persons were introduced.

Campaign Plans Changed

Leading up to the series of national and international problems in which he said the President had shown evidence of capable leadership, Senator Fess told of the President's decision to appear on the platform in behalf of his campaign, changing his original plans not to go on a speaking tour.

One reason for this change in plans was the "tactics" used by campaigners in the opposite party, Senator Fess said. Another reason cited was that enthusiasm for the administration, evinced many times over Hoover's leadership in national and world affairs, was detracted from, after a time, by general conditions.

As a result, the President and his advisors decided to apprise the country, in three campaign speeches, of the tremendous problems that he and the administration faced, Senator Fess said.

These problems, he continued, are the aftermath of the World war, which without doubt was the greatest international convulsion in the history of civilization.

The speaker prefaced his re-

PARIS, Oct. 5—Efforts to reach Samuel Insull today for comment on his indictment by a Cook county grand jury were unavailing.

PROGRAM OUTLINED BY DEMOCRATIC CLUB

Young Party Leaders Seek To Boost Rural Membership in Organization.

A series of informal township meetings in the homes of members were planned last night by the Young Voters' association of the Democratic club to build up its membership and to stimulate activity in rural precincts.

It was reported last night by President Theodore E. Ochs that the association now has 40 members outside the city, and that this number is increasing steadily.

Last night's meeting was devoted to a discussion of organization plans, and to a short talk by Paul Naber, candidate for county recorder.

An effort is being made to obtain Herbert S. Duffey, candidate for attorney general, to speak at the next meeting of the club on Oct. 11.

CROWD AT COOKING SCHOOL NEARS 1,000

Mrs. Ruth Campbell Makes First Appearance Before Marion Audience.

Sugar, ginger, molasses, a bit of salt, flour, boiling water and a few more ordinary ingredients were transformed into the most delectable ginger bread, the writer of eggs, properly beaten, sugar, baking powder and vanilla, browned to a queen's taste, made a gorgeous mountain top for a chocolate pie, under the nimble fingers and accurate eye of Mrs. Ruth Campbell in The Marion Star's eighth annual cooking school yesterday afternoon in The Star auditorium.

And there were not all the good things demonstrated to the nearly 1,000 housewives and housekeepers of Marion and Marion county assembled for the opening session of the four-day cooking school.

Are Spoken Quickly

Mrs. Campbell and her audience became real friends at the opening of the session and only the clock convinced the women that the first day's lecture was at an end and it was time to go up on the platform and personally greet her and also inspect the results of the afternoon's demonstration.

Possibly four of the women gained down the highest mark of fame to do this or that, as learned by the first hour, but what it was that provoked this desire seemed lacking out sight, and when the time for questions came there was no doubt but that they were there for the first purpose and that was to find out all the lectures could tell them about the various products, especially new products.

3 VAUDEVILLE ACTS, HOLLYWOOD SATIRE ON PALACE PROGRAM

Three acts of vaudeville, the first to put in an appearance at the Palace in months and one of the most highly-touted satires on Hollywood, "Once in a Lifetime," will fill up the Palace bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. As a move to add spirit to the entertainment fare during the state Grotto convention, the Palace will offer this stage show in a midnight program Friday night at 11:30.

Hollywood took it on the chin and grinned, when Broadway produced "Once in a Lifetime," a play by Moss Hart and George Kauffman. And then Universal decided that the play was such good stuff that Hollywood would ridicule itself, and bought the play. Jack Oakie, Sidney Fox, Aline McMahon, Zasu Pitts and Louise Fazenda carry the important roles.

The vaudeville program will offer one "flash" act of elaborate settings, in the Ames and Co. act with six members. Wylie and Young, a singing, dancing comedy duo and Lewis and Ray who will come to Marion from the Hollywood theater in Detroit, in a comedy act, will complete the bill. The theater orchestra will be augmented to 12 pieces for the three-day program, with Regal Spencer at the organ.

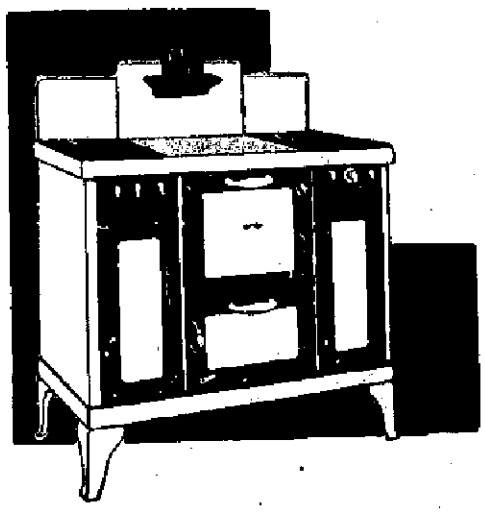
Tappan 'Buffet' Is Radically Different!

When you visit The Star Cooking School be sure to inspect the many attractive and modern features of the Tappan Buffet Gas Range being used by Miss Ruth Campbell in the daily demonstrations. Note the ease and certainty with which foods are cooked "just right" when using this smart, efficient range and the superior of all fuels for cooking—GAS.



Note these Unusual Features!

- Divided Cooking Top — Gives more cooking space.
- Center Service Table — Handy for preparing food
- Warming Compartment — Keep foods piping hot.
- Storage Space — Roomy place for pots and pans.
- Automatic Lighting — Top burners light at turn of valve.
- Oven Heat Control — Reliably accurate and convenient.
- Smokeless Broiler — and easy sliding broiler drawer.
- Speed Oven — Heavily insulated; with removable bottom.
- Genuine Beauty — Famous Tappan style and class.

New Cooking Standards Have Been Set By the Modern "Buffet" Range

THROUGH this radically different gas range, entirely new cooking standards—new standards in style, efficiency, value and step-saving conveniences—have been established. A divided cooking top, a center service table and numerous other very latest improvements in modern cookery make the Tappan Buffet as distinctive as it is practical and beautiful.

In either marbleized or all-cream trim, the Buffet model radiates smartness. Its attractive style and finish will add beauty to any kitchen. With all of its many advantages, the Buffet is reasonably priced and can be purchased on The Gas Company's easy payment plan, with small down payment and the balance monthly with your gas bill.

Now is an ideal time to install an efficient gas range in your home. With cooler weather at hand, there will be more cooking—more warm dishes—more baking. A modern GAS range, with the many advantages afforded by use of the quickest and most efficient cooking fuel—GAS—will make cooking a real pleasure, even when there is so much more of it to be done during the Fall and Winter season.

Gas is the Superior Fuel for Cooking!

Gas gives instant heat. The little gas flame has the cooking job well under way before other fuels get started.

And gas is the most economical fuel for cooking. Based on a rate of 75 cents per thousand cubic feet, gas for cooking costs only one-quarter of a cent per meal, per person.

Just as gas has no equal as a cooking fuel, it excels in the many other uses to which fuel can be put in the home. Water heating, home heating and refrigeration are a few of the other operations in which this clean servant does the job efficiently, cleanly, economically, and with cleanliness. Harding Needs Better Running Attack for Shelby Battle

HUGE BUCKEYE GUARD WILL BE BIG HELP IN DRIVE TOWARD TITLE

Ohio Coaches See Joe Gailus as One of Nation's Best Linemen.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O Oct 5 — No matter how tough the going gets for the Ohio State university football team this fall there will always be one bright spot in the lives of the coaching staff

And that bright spot will be Joe Gailus 200 pound guard from Vandergrift Pa

Take it from Sam Willaman and Ernie Godfrey this Gailus is one of the best guards they ever saw play on an Ohio State team or any other team for that matter And they have seen several elevens perform in their day as players and coaches

Gailus is a quiet unassuming boy of 22 and stands six feet one inch a veritable giant of bone and muscle

It isn't all size that pleases the coaches It's his speed With the exception of Bill Carroll, halfback Gailus can outspeed any player on the squad despite his size It's the combination of this speed and size and the way he uses it in leading interference, blocking and tackling that would cheer any coach, win lose or draw

Close followers of the game will remember that it was Gailus who started Ohio State on its way to victory last year over Michigan He went down under the opening kickoff like a flash and tackled the receiver young Willie Heston so hard the ball flew up in the air and was immediately recovered by an Ohio man

Reserve players will tell you that Gailus is the hardest tackling man on the squad and the most vicious blocker He plays football because he likes the game that probably is what makes him a great player

Should Ohio State have a successful season this year one of the principal reasons will be Joe Gailus And when it comes time to selecting All-American players there a name to consider

THREE MEN OUT AS INJURIES HIT TEAM

Firstenberger, Keller, Hagan All Hurt, Bohyer Orders Light Drills To Prevent Other Mishaps.

With three members of the squad on the hospital list and at least two of them likely to be there yet Saturday when Harding collides with the Shelby Whippets there is no oversupply of sunshine in the camp of the Presidents as they prepare for their first league conflict of the year Lowell Firstenberger a giant tackle and Oliver Hagan a flanker are both out of the lineup Firstenberger with an injured ankle and Hagan with an ailing shoulder Neither will be in condition for a hard tussle Saturday and there is considerable doubt whether either will get into the battle for even a short time Bob Keller is the third man on the casualty list Keller suffered a cut near the eye in practice yesterday While the injury will no doubt handicap his work Keller will probably be able to play against the Whippets

Coach D N Bohyer and his staff of assistants are working feverishly to extricate the numerous defects from the mechanism of the Harding football machine and turn the machine into a smooth working piece of apparatus capable of producing touchdowns when touchdowns are needed The 1932 model machine which Bohyer & Co manufactured and put into operation a couple of weeks ago has rolled along at a fairly steady rate most of the time but there have been moments when it appeared as though the machinery would not stand the gaff if the going became more than ordinarily heavy

In two games to date the Red and Black point gathering apparatus has ground out an even half hundred tallies On the face of it that doesn't look like a bad rate of production and for that matter it isn't. However, the fact remains that the opposition has not been unusually stern and that several times imperfections have appeared which if not quickly removed will probably result in the complete breakdown of the machine

Passes Be the Trick

The ability to do two things with a fairly reasonable degree of skill has been almost totally responsible for the two Harding triumphs thus far One is to hurl forward passes for consistent gains. The other is to pile through on defense and block attempted enemy punts and then convert the kicks into Harding touchdowns Three touchdowns have been scored either directly responsible for four six pointers and another overhead heave placed the ball on the four-yard stripe from where the eighth and final marker was jammed across on straight football Eight touchdowns scored—five of them via the overhead route and three by making breaks and taking advantage of them All of which is well and good as long as the enemy is willing to stand by And watch the oval sail through the ozone without doing anything about it

The disturbing part of the story, however is that Shelby and other future foes which Harding will face this fall are not likely to hang around in a daze while the Presidents ride to victory on a multitude of forward tosses Consequently Bohyer and his aides de camp must look around and do it rather hurriedly if you please for some means of driving the oval across the chalk lines other than by air

Only Two Ways

Inasmuch as no one has yet devised any methods of advancing the ball and still retaining possession of it other than by either throwing or carrying it It looks like Bohyer will have to find someone who can tuck the pigskin under his wing, and tip it through opposing lines with at least a reasonable degree of success The team hasn't yet been turned out which can go through a successful season without at least a fairly good imitation of a powerful running attack

The more fact that in the first two games Harding has displayed a power attack which it produced in quantities would retail at something less than a dime a dozen on the football market cannot by any means be taken as an indication that the winning ways of the Presidents are deadlined for an abrupt halt within a short time Bohyer has been bringing his charges along rather slowly preferring to take a chance on conquering the early season pushovers with a mediocre attack while he worked the team to its peak strength for the all important N C O championship conflicts

Despite the fact three valuable cogs of the machine may be grazing the sidelines during the Shelby contest the Harding team is likely to exhibit more drive through the line than heretofore Bohyer sent the boys through a fairly long workout yesterday and is expected to repeat the process today as he strives to put power into the attack Light scrimmage was indulged in Tuesday but the rough variety was strictly taboo as Bohyer sought to avoid further injuries The same program is likely to be on tap today

Several new plays have been handed out and every effort is being made to perfect these maneuvers without causing further ailments If the weather clears up before drill time today Bohyer may bear down and send the boys through a fairly stiff workout However if the ground is still slippery and offers precarious footing there will be no heavy scrimmage

JOHNSON OUSTED BY GRIFFITH AS SKIPPER OF WASHINGTON CLUB

Famed "Big Train" Fired After Four Years at Senators' Helm.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 5—Walter Johnson the smoking 'big train' of baseball history today was a castoff from the Washington American league club after four seasons as its manager on top of 20 years as its record-setting fireball pitcher

No reason was given by Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, in announcing last night that Johnson would not remain as manager He said only that his contract had expired and was not to be renewed

The name of a successor also was unknown Griffith said he had no one in mind while fans speculated on Joe Judge veteran first baseman Joe Cronin ace shortstop and Sam Rice long a Washington fielder

WALTER JOHNSON gangling 19 year old rookie from Idaho in 1907 His discoverer, Cliff Blankenship, a scout reported

He threws so fast you can't see em and he knows where he is throwing the ball because if he didn't there would be heaps of dead bodies strewn all over the state of Idaho

From his first game in 1907 Johnson blazed his way through a trail of records His strikeout mark of 3 497 still stands for the boys to shoot at

Here are some of the other things he did while a fast ball artist

In 1913 56 consecutive scoreless innings 1910, struck out three Philadelphia pinch hitters in a row, turned in a no-hit game against Boston in 1920 led the American league in strikeouts for 12 seasons

In his first world series in 1924 Johnson won the deciding 12 inning tilt after losing his first two starts He won two games in the 1925 series but lost the final

The personal idol of capital fans Johnson was one of the most popular players in the league His managerial record shows that the club finished sixth in his first year in 1929 pulled to second in 1930 and wound up in third place in 1931 and this year

NEWARK, MILLERS AGAIN HELD UP

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS Oct. 5—Newark and Minneapolis moved into the fifth game of the Little World series today with both clubs hoping for a revival of the powerful hitting which marked their regular campaigns to break their tie of two victories each

Prospects were for a considerably warmer afternoon than on Tuesday when a sharp drop in temperatures forced the clubs to be idle

Joss Petty left handed veteran will start for the Millers today with Pete Jablanowski the probable starter for the International league champions.

Finland has established telephone connections with North American countries by way of London and with South American countries by way of Berlin

GOPHER HALFBACK BATTLES FOR LIFE

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS Minn Oct 5— Myron Cobi University of Minnesota football star continued his determined fight for life in University hospital today as his fellow teammates hopefully waited for a turn for the better in his condition

The Gopher ball carrier was fighting for the third day against a critical condition caused by pneumonia and an abscessed lung resulting from an injury in football practice

Only a slight improvement was noted early today and it was far too little to assure physicians they said that he would recover

PETROLLE BATTLES CANZONERI TONIGHT

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Oct 5—The Petrolle boys Billy of Duluth and Frankie of Schenectady are gunning up on the ring's leading light weights who will tell you the only thing more deadly than one Petrolle is a couple of them

Billy softened up Chile opher (Bat) Battalino in two battles before brother Frankie took a couple of decisions from the former featherweight champion Tonight brother Frankie will try to repay the favor in his 10-round non title match with Tony Canzoneri light weight champion at Ebbets field Brooklyn

If Frankie can hand Canzoneri a trimming then Billy may have a much better chance of winning when he meets Tony in a title bout in Madison Square Garden next month

Bowling Statistics

Until some pin smasher comes along who can collect more than 2 pins in a single game A I Hinklin and Homer Waddell will hold the 1932 scoring record for city bowlers Hinklin a member of the Serv U Wel Grocers quintet and Waddell of the Smart & Waddell company five both battered the maples for a 277 score last night as the All Star league went through its regular weekly schedule This is the highest score rolled on a Marion alley this season

Hinklin rolled his record score in the first of three games and Waddell came right back in his second start to duplicate the performance Hinklin rolled 15 and 166 in his other two games Waddell turned in two other scores of 190 and 222

The Markert & Lewis Haberdashers racked up the highest single game team score last night with a mark of 1 040 in the third game of the series Serv U Wel was second with a one game score of 1 011 recorded in the same game in which Hinklin had his big evening

GRAINS SINK TO NEW LOWS

Wheat Hits Lowest Point Since Aug 3. Other Cereals Decline.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO Oct. 5—Flurried selling that accompanied New York stock market downturns carried wheat prices today to the bottom most point since Aug 3 with corn and oats both smashing low records

Disappointment that President Hoover's Des Moines speech did not contain greater promises to the grain trade was a bearish factor Another unsettling influence was an all time new bottom price for wheat at Winnipeg October contracts there dropping below 49 cents a bushel

THESE MODERN ROMEOS.

Life is a crossword puzzle in which the feat of a modern girl's life is to find a man whose heart contains a four letter word meaning affection

Even the best hearted of women can't help feeling secretly gleeful when she discovers that one of her dearest friends weighs five pounds more than she does

The delay in announcing the engagement these days is not caused by the girl's slowness to realize that a man wants to marry her, but by the amount of time it takes her to make him realize it.

It's not much use for a man to spend months spurring a woman that she is beautiful brilliant and interesting only to lose out to the first casual flirt who spends three minutes in telling her that she has it.

The modern girl finds it hard to admit that the same freedom which gives her the right to say Let's get married Big Boy also gives the ungrateful male the right to say No thanks Old Girl

No doubt the young husband of the next generation will be constantly reminding his wife that she can't mix a cocktail open a can or blow smoke rings Like Mother used to

The only person on earth who gets on a man's nerves worse than a woman who always keeps him waiting is the woman who is always waiting for him

The greatest adventure of a man's life is to find the work for which he was intended, the greatest adventure of a woman's, to find the man for whom she was intended

Nothing appears to give a man such a pang of emotional dyspepsia as fastening his eyes on the same girl, seven evenings in succession

WANT RELIEF BONDS ISSUED

Bucyrus Council and Mayor To Ask Action by County Board.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Oct. 5—That Bucyrus is approaching a critical situation in caring for its needy and unemployed was pointed out by Mayor Arthur Schuler Tuesday night at the regular session of city council, when he urged that body to call the attention of the county commissioners to a resolution adopted by council several weeks ago, calling upon the commissioners to issue relief bonds in anticipation of the excise utilities tax collection for relief purposes.

While explaining the city's financial condition, it was pointed out by the mayor that, for the first time on record, the city has been called upon to dispose of securities in the sinking fund because of tax delinquencies.

He said that approximately $9,500 would be needed monthly during the next three months in caring for needy and unemployed.

The finance committee and the mayor were appointed to confer with the county commissioners in an effort to secure immediate action on the issuance of relief bonds.

Approval of council was given to an application by George W. Ward, operator of a bus line, for bus service between Columbus and Bucyrus. The application is now pending before the state utilities commission.

OBITUARY

Amanda (Roseberry) Lybarger was born in Dallas township, Crawford county, September 9, 1852, and died September 28, 1932, aged 80 years and 19 days.

She was the daughter of John and Amanda (Garrett) Roseberry and the granddaughter of Charles and Katherine (White) Garrett, pioneer settlers of Crawford county, the former leaving Wyandot, Ohio, with the Wyandot Indians to become one of the founders of Wyandot City, Kansas.

She was also the great granddaughter of Charles White, a nephew of John and Charles Wesley, founders of Methodism in America, who with his two brothers, John and Samuel, served as "Minute Men" in the Continental army in the Revolutionary war, the former being present at the siege of Yorktown while the two latter gave their lives for their country. After the close of the war he emigrated to Kentucky and in 1808 emancipated his slaves and moved to Greenfield, Ohio, where he founded one of the first Methodist churches, services being held in his home.

On July 25, 1875, she was married to Samuel C. Lybarger and to this union was born six children, Ira Lee who died Aug. 10, 1887, Emily Jane, Inis M. and Carroll Byron at home, Sadie of Chicago, Ill., and Elma of Cleveland, Ohio. She was a member of the Wyandot Baptist church and spent her entire life in and near Wyandot, where she endeared herself to her neighbors by her many acts of kindness. As a woman of sterling character she will ever be sadly missed and mourned by those who loved her, but most deeply will her absence be felt in the circle of her own home, where she was found ever ministering to the comforts of her family.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

CHILDREN'S LOVE.

Billy's mother frequently refers to him as her "little sweetheart." The designation is more revealing than she realizes. She admits that she loves him with devotion, that he is to her the most precious thing on earth.

But when it happens that absorbed in play he forgets to give her the whole-hearted personal response to which she is accustomed she is annoyed and shows her annoyance by treating him coldly.

Returning one evening from an absence of several days, (for which she had taken no trouble to prepare him) she was hurt deeply when he scarcely returned her greeting.

Billy, for his part, was hurt too. Had she not deserted him? It would be hard to tell which of the two, the mother or her 4-year-old son behaved more childishly. It would seem that the child had the more justification for his behavior.

One can not expect a child to adjust himself to a lover-like capriciousness in his parents. He does not understand a love that goes from one extreme to another. He is unskilled at dramatizing his emotions, and can not find his way in a situation that demands a quality of feeling of which he is not capable. He is merely baffled, confused and hurt.

In the long run he learns to love such a mother at one moment and hate her intensely the next. He learns to sulk and to tease by pretending indifference or to get what he wants by showing especial affection.

Children are not little sweethearts, they are children. And they do not need passionate adoration that asks a like return, but rather quiet steady affection which they may take for granted.

Stop a COLD the First Day!

Taken Promptly, this Four-Way Remedy Will Usually Stop a Cold the First Day and Save You Much Suffering as Well as the Danger of Serious Complications!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started. Once a cold fastens its grip on you, it becomes twice as hard to remove. And a cold lodged in the system may lead to something worse.

Don't hope to kill a cold with merely local or external applications. A cold is a germ attack, an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment.

Don't hope to kill a cold, either, with anything except a COLD remedy. A cure-all is self-deception. Many preparations which people commonly take for a cold actually make the relief of a cold more difficult because these preparations are constipating and also make the system acid.

The Required Effects

The thing to take for a cold or case of grippe is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine—because it does the four things necessary, in the way that is necessary.

First of all, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly—the first step in knocking a cold. Secondly, it kills the cold germs in the system, expels the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Thirdly, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourthly, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

This is the treatment a cold calls for—adequate and decisive.

Harmless, but Effective!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate or make the head ring or swim.

In dainty tablet form, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is convenient and pleasant to take, as well as effective. Comes in handy pocket size boxes, cellophane-wrapped and is sold by every drug store in America.

When you feel a cold coming on, take a few of the tablets immediately. This will usually expel the cold overnight and prevent the infection from spreading within the system and becoming fixed and dangerous. Remember, a cold is nothing to trifle with!—Adv.

ENOUGH TURKISH BUT NOT TOO MUCH

Turkish tobacco sometimes runs hundreds of little leaves to the pound. In cigarettes it is used much as seasoning is in food, for flavor and better taste.

You know that seasoning has to be used right . . . just enough of it, not too much.

Chesterfield puts in just the right amount of Turkish tobacco—the best kinds—Xanthi, Cavalla, Smyrna and Samsoun. These are not merely blended, but cross-blended with ripe, mellow Domestic tobaccos.

Enough Turkish, not too much—that's one reason why Chesterfields taste better—why they have a delicacy of aroma you do not find in other cigarettes.

DEM. LEADERS BURY HATCHET

Roosevelt and Smith Unite in Party Cause at N. Y. Convention.

CROWD ROARS APPROVAL

Tumult Drowns Rivals' Greeting as They Forget Differences.

By The Associated Press

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 5—Two hands clasped in flood-light lingered in the memory of Democrats today as they squared away for final tussles with Republicans.

They were the hands of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith, who called each other "Al" and "Frank" as they grinned over a common victory.

Both had fought for the nomination of Lieut Governor Herbert H. Lehman as governor. As opposition finally melted and success arrived, they met on the platform of the Democratic state convention last night.

Ten thousand pairs of eyes watched them. It was the first time they had met since before the Chicago national convention, where Roosevelt won and Smith lost the nomination for the presidency.

Met on Platform

Smith, arriving to place Lehman in nomination, went on the platform. Shaking hands with persons there, he approached the spot where Roosevelt was standing. It was "Hello, Al" and "Hello, Frank" and then the handshake.

Tumult drowned their further remarks, but as reported by Guernsey T. Cross, the governor's secretary, the dialogue over the handclasp was:

Roosevelt: "Al, this comes from the heart."

Smith: "That goes for me too."

A few minutes later he expressed confidence that the Democratic national ticket would be successful.

Smith Regime Lauded

Roosevelt, addressing the convention, praised Lehman and said that under Smith's governorship "this state was put on the map among all states, as the criterion of successful state government."

"I look forward," he continued, "to Jan. 1, 1933, when I turn over the reins of the state government to that splendid right hand man of mine, Herbert H. Lehman."

She was the widow of Henry C. Miller, general foreman at the Hocking Valley round house for 45 years. He died seven years ago. She was a member of Oakland Evangelical church and of Lydia Chapter No. 83, Order of Eastern Star.

displays and exhibits of home equipment and labor saving devices which will be shown throughout the week.

"Home efficiency depends upon the setup in the kitchen just as much as efficiency in running an office depends upon its well ordered equipment," Mrs Campbell told her audience. She urged careful and considerate buying on the part of the housewife without lowering the quality of health giving elements of the food She was optimistic in her views of the "depression" which she said was getting better and urged the women not to worry but keep on with their work of homemaking.

Meringue Advice

"Be sure to put the sugar in last and the eggs should be beaten dry" to make a successful meringue, Mrs. Campbell cautioned the women in her discussion and demonstration of her pie fillings. The baking powder, she said, kept the meringue in shape. Baking powder added to scrambled eggs increases the quantity and sprinkled on liver makes it more tender, she said. For the woman who is trying to keep from taking on weight, Mrs. Campbell declared, baking powder added to cooked dried fruits took the place of sugar.

Proper temperature is a most important feature in the baking of custard pie, the lecturer said and anything with molasses should only be baked in a slow oven. Too much sugar and a too hot oven is responsible for tough meringue, she declared.

Colorful linens for breakfast were urged by the lecturer for brightening up the day and she called their attention to the return of the checkered red and white or red and black tablecloth of grandmother's day which is again becoming popular with hostesses. She cautioned the women against appearing in her kitchen in anything but a sprightly or colorful housedress suitable to greet a morning caller. "The day of putting on the old evening gown to do up the work in the morning just because one wants to get a little more wear out of it is past," she said.

New dishes will be demonstrated each day by Mrs. Campbell and new items in home furnishings will be on display and also for demonstration for the remaining two days of the school marks on the moratorium with events leading directly to the reason it was proposed. Following the war, he said, every phase of production overexpanded and values became inflated abnormally So long as consumption kept pace with production, there was no danger

One necessary thing was overlooked, he said, This was the "fixing" of the reparations on Germany, regarded by many observers of international trade as absolutely essential before worldwide commerce could be carried on freely Regardless of whether the amount of their reparations was large or small, it was essential that a definite amount be fixed, he said.

Germany's "Comeback" Appeals

Germany's "comeback" after reparations had been fixed appealed to the American investor as fertile territory for their loans, and the result was that $6,000,000,000 of American capital was invested in Europe, mostly in Germany, the senator continued.

For this, he asserted, neither the President nor the federal reserve system could be blamed—it simply was the result of the aggressive policy of the American investing public.

While a series of financial catastrophes, led by the fall of the great Rothschild bank of Vienna threw Europe into a financial tangle, the Americans who invested heavily in Germany had given the German and European securities as collateral for huge loans from New York banks, Senator Fess said.

Thus, American business and the entire financial fabric of the country was involved in Germany's welfare, he stated He pointed to President Hoover as the leader who, acting at all times "with his eye and heart on America," proposed the famous 1931 moratorium and launched a series of actions that saw Germany's reparations reduced from $12,000,000,000 to $714,000,000 with a provision that it should pay nothing before three years. Herbert Hoover, he declared, led the way toward saving the financial integrity of Europe and as a result saved America from a financial catastrophe.

Foreign Relations Amicable

A direct tribute to the President's leadership in the cordial relation between United States and foreign countries generally, the speaker said. Never before have Mexico, Central and South American countries felt so friendly toward United States, he said

"He is mobilizing the cordial good will of all nations to preclude the possibility of another World war," Senator Fess said.

The speaker listed other events in which the President had played the role of a leader, including the series of White House conferences with labor and industry to prevent wage disputes and strikes, and his series of constructive programs designed to meet the most pressing problems of the distressed times. He also praised his action placing the responsibility for caring for the needy on the individual cities and counties, with provision to loan them federal assistance if needed.

Congressman Moore praised the program of David S. Ingalls, especially the Republican gubernatorial nominee's promise to take politics out of the state highway department. He charged that there was unfair discrimination against Republicans in the employment of laborers in the state highway department at present

Favors Help for All

He declared he was in favor of dropping political lines in the employment of men on road work at a time when jobs should be given to fellow citizens

Charles H Lewis state campaign chairman told of the work of protecting the party organization in Ohio and said that reports during the last few weeks showed gains in Ohio for Hoover and Ingalls.

Miss Gertrude Jones of Findlay, Eighth district committeewoman, and a leader in the organization of Ohio Republican women, reported that there was a chairwoman in every county and that 42 counties are completely organized, with a worker in every precinct.

Fred W. Warner, Eighth district committeeman, recalled that the women's organizations were made an official unit of the state Republican organization while he was chairman of the state executive committee.

W. N. Harder, chairman of the county executive committee, who presided, also introduced Mrs. French Crow, president of the Marion County Chapter, Ohio Council of Republican Women, Walter S. Guthrie, president of the Republican men's club, and Mrs. Virginia Parcher, president of the Republican Young Women's club.

Among those seated at the speakers' table was Frank E. McMillin of Mt. Gilead, now in his seventh year as president of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

UTILITY RECEIVERS TO ASK AID OF R. F. C.

Insull Holding Company Administrators Seek 21 Million Loan.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 5—The receivers of Middle West Utilities company determined today to ask the Reconstruction Finance corporation for $21,000,000 to liquidate loans of the National Electric Power company held by five New York banks.

Middle West, the gigantic Insull holding company, invested $40,000,000 in its 99 per cent stock ownership of the National Electric Power company, but lost operating control last July when the New York banks took charge.

Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch, receivers, announced their plan to regain control for Middle West today, after a conference in Danville, Ill., yesterday with F. S. District Judge Walter C. Lindley.

By obtaining the $21,000,000 loan and applying it to repayment of the National Electric power debt the receivers would obtain release of $36,000,000 in collateral pledged against the loan.

In a statement accompanying the announcement, Hurley and McCulloch said they could effect much greater efficiency in operation of the eastern utilities in the National Electric Power group by restoring unified control. As evidence they asserted that since they took charge as receivers of the big holding company last April they had made a saving of $1,750,000 in its annual office expenses, while the operating companies of Middle West Utilities had bettered their cash position by $2,955,000 and reduced their floating debts by $4,300,000.

DEMOCRATIC PLANS SCORED BY HOOVER

Unsafe and Menace to Business Recovery, President Says at Des Moines.

the first lengthy exposition of his views on campaign issues since his speech of acceptance, the President referred directly to statements by his Democratic opponent, Gov. Roosevelt, and once departed from his text to say Roosevelt's characterization of the Hawley-Smoot tariff law as "the highest in the history of the world" was not "true."

The President scheduled today's stops after crowds running as high as 12,000, according to police estimates, welcomed him and Mrs. Hoover into their native state of Iowa, at various stations along the way

In his speech before a throng which included most of Iowa's leading Republicans the President said that Republican policies "are winning out." "If we continue to fight along these lines we shall win," he added.

Heading the President's list of 12 policies and proposals was the proposition that "the very basis of safety to American agriculture is the protective tariff on farm products." The Republican party, he added, "will maintain the protective tariff on farm products and even widen that tariff further where necessary to protect agriculture."

Four Important Points

Among the President's proposals were:

1—Revision of the farm marketing act.

2—Support of a "sound program" to "promote the reorganization of agriculture."

3—Recommendation at the next session of congress of a reorganization of the federal land banks.

4—Proposal that any annual payment on the foreign debt be used for the specific purpose of securing an expansion of the foreign markets for American agricultural products.

In a carefully prepared section of his speech, which he did not complete until he neared Des Moines, the President reviewed what he called the "real doctrine and program of the men" who "dominate" the Democratic party.

Although the Democrats were in control of congress, he said, the Democrats presented no program. "The administration did present a program which has saved the country from complete disaster," he added.

Democrats in the house, the President continued, "produced a program of pork-barrel legislation in the sum of $1,200,000,000 and passed a bonus bill which "would have made our currency a football of every speculator and every vicious element in the financial world."

The Democratic Bill

House Democrats also, Mr. Hoover said, passed a bill "which would have made the government the most gigantic pawnbroker of history.

"Had their program passed it would have been the end of recovery. If it ever passes, it will end hope of recovery.

"This program was passed through the Democratic house of representatives under the leadership of the gentleman who has been nominated the Democratic candidate for vice president, and thus these measures and policies were approved by their party."

Mr. Hoover reviewed at length what he called the administration's "battles on a thousand fronts" against the "economic storm."

"Seldom in history have we come through greater dangers or have the difficulties before the nation been of such gravity," he said "We are contending today with forces at home and abroad which still threaten the safety of civilization."

Applause greeted Mr Hoover when he said: "And above all we have fought to preserve the safety, the principles and the ideals of American life. We have builded the foundation of recovery."

The Campaign Puzzle

Study Past State-by-State Votes in Making Your Forecast

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth of a series of articles showing how the states voted in the 1928 presidential election and pointing out developments since.

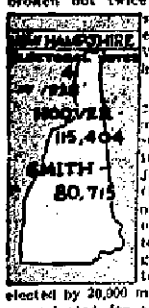
New Hampshire's record of Republican regularity has been broken but twice since 1856, the state giving its electoral votes to Woodrow Wilson in 1912 and 1916.



This Republican tradition was maintained in the state elections of 1930, when Gov. John G. Winant (R.) was renominated in defiance of the state custom of limiting governors to one term, and re-elected by 20,000 majority. He was renominated for a third term in the recent primaries.

Campaign activity this year has been intensified by the results of the state elections in Maine early in September, which spurred Republican efforts to maintain the state's normal tendency while encouraging Democrats with a hope that this tendency might be overcome.

The campaign for the national tickets is interwoven this year with the senatorial candidacies. Senator George H. Moses (R.), an administration stalwart, is opposed by former Gov. Fred H. Brown (D.), who was a leader in Roosevelt's campaign for convention delegates in 1932.

Economic issues and interest in the opposing platforms of the two parties for dealing with prohibition stand out as campaign issues.

New Hampshire this year has four electoral votes as formerly.

Michigan has cast its vote for every Republican candidate for the presidency since John C. Fremont in 1856, with the exception of 1912, when it gave its vote to Theodore Roosevelt, progressive.

Sizable as was Herbert Hoover's majority in 1928, it fell somewhat short of that given Calvin Coolidge, who received 874,631 votes against 352,238 for John W. Davis.

In the state elections of 1930, Wilber M. Brucker (D.) defeated William A. Comstock (D.) by a vote of 483,990, to 357,664, and in the same year Senator James Couzens (R.) was reelected by a majority of 464,820.

Prohibition has been an issue of major interest in the current campaign, and the state is to vote Nov. 8 on a proposed constitutional amendment which would wipe out existing bone-dry legislation.

In the primaries this year more than 800,000 votes were cast for the Democratic candidates for governor. This was more than 40 per cent of the total cast in both primaries and was hailed by Democrats as an encouraging sign. Republicans, however, held that a contest for the gubernatorial nomination had brought out the Democrats' full party strength.

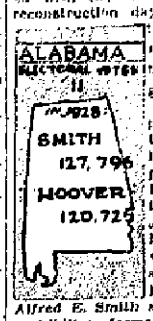
Michigan has 19 electoral votes this year, instead of its former 15.

Alabama, which had been counted with the "solid South" since reconstruction days, remained in the Democratic ranks in 1928 by the narrow margin of 7,071 votes.



The large Republican vote in that year followed a campaign of unusual intensity in which Senator J. Thomas Heflin led an active campaign against his party's nominee, Alfred E. Smith and his views on prohibition formed the major issue in pre-election debates.

Senator Heflin was barred from the party primary in 1930 for his activities in support of Herbert Hoover, and as a candidate for reelection on an independent ticket, opposing John H. Bankhead, was defeated by a majority of 50,083 votes. Heflin charged election frauds, his contest was defeated in the senate.

The prohibition planks of the two major parties again form a major issue in this year's campaign, Alabama long having been considered among the staunchest of dry states. Interest in this issue, however, seems to be equalled by interest in the opposing programs for dealing with the country's economic situation.

Alabama's vote in the electoral college has been reduced by reapportionment this year from 12 to 11.

Selby Arch Preserver Shoe

4 FACTS ABOUT FEET

The way the Scientific features of Selby Arch Preserver Shoes save your feet from the disastrous effects of wearing incorrect footwear is shown graphically below.

WHAT NATURE INTENDED

You can see by this illustration that when you walk bare-footed, as Nature originally intended, the level floor touches not only the heel and ball of your foot but also the outer edge.

NATURAL TREAD-BASE

The patented arch bridge of Selby Arch Preserver Shoes, scientifically correct in its design, restores to your foot the comforting support of a natural treadbase. An exclusive feature.

SAGGING EFFECT

This shows what happens when your heel is set up on the heel of a shoe. The heel and ball rest solidly, but the outer edge (between the two) has been robbed of its natural treadbase.

LEVEL INNER SOLE

...prevents the crowding of bones and muscles caused by the saucer-like innersoles of most ordinary shoes. And the basis over which Arch Preservers are made are scientifically designed.

Come in and try on the new Selby Arch Preserver Shoes we are now showing—most styles at $10.00.

Mrs. Ruth Campbell of the Marion Star Cooking School—heartily endorses this shoe for all occasions.

Coincidence.

As has been pointed out in other cases there is a difference between a coincidence and a fortuitous circumstance The Chicago Insulls should make a clear distinction

Had it merely happened that Samuel Insull, Sr., and his son and brother chanced to take vacations outside the United States all at the same time, and had it not happened that their trips abroad were scheduled at a time when a state's attorney was investigating the collapse of their vast utility empire, that might have been a coincidence.

But it so happened that father and son were safe in Europe and the third Insull was in Canada when the state decided that it could use them in its processes of investigation Such an epidemic of vacations abroad among three Chicago residents at a time when most business men are staying at home and counting their pennies looks more like fortuitous circumstance than coincidence

A good many hundreds of American citizens are honestly mad about the collapse of the Insull bubble. The national conscience of the remnant thereof, is pricked sharply by current rumors about parts of the huge organization of the Insull holdings that should be investigated The national pride, recently kicked around in an insultingly familiar manner by disclosures of the adroit financial manipulations of the late Ivar Kreuger, is in a defensive position.

For the sake of fairness, let it be assumed that coincidence explains the presence of the Insulls outside the borders of the United States at such a critical time What a fortunate coincidence it would be if they were to return in a way that would show all who have doubted their intentions that there is nothing in the record of their conduct to hide.

Best in the World.

When the New York Yankees win a world series they have a way of removing all doubt about their right to be world champions. They have done it again this year with four straight games—the shortest road to the title

There is no surprise in their victory Famed for their extraordinary power at the plate, they merely came up to expectations. The luckless pitchers of the Chicago Cubs have no reason to take too seriously their inability to baffle such a collection of hitters. Neither does the National league have any reason to question why its pennant winner looked like a bush league outfit against the American league champions. The Yankees are an unique team by virtue of their tremendous batting power. No pitcher can face them without fearsome apprehension of the possibilities contained in their lineup of sluggers

It is not easy to say that the Cubs deserved to lose but, outside Chicago, it is at least reasonable to say that the Yankees deserved to win. With four straight victories to their credit no excuses are in order With anything less than that amazingly sports writers would be busy explaining what was wrong They were the superior team on paper before the series started. With each successive game they demonstrated more clearly that they were the superior team on the field.

Had their superiority been any less evident, the world series might have been a more lucrative enterprise this year Had baseball been any less honest, furthermore, the series might have been extended for the benefit of the gate receipts. The method of victory proves clearly that the best baseball team in the world went about the business of proving its superiority conscientiously Once more the Yankees have reached the pinnacle of excellence and once more owners and managers in both leagues are looking ahead to the day when Colonel Ruppert's husky, capable boys will slow up enough to give some one else a chance

The Lytton Report.

The international importance of the long awaited Lytton commission report on Manchuria is evident in the dynamite caps with which the document bristles. Handled carelessly, it easily might be the fuse leading to another World war

National reactions to the report vary, necessarily. Because it condemns Japanese occupation of Manchuria and organization of the puppet state of Manchukuo, Japan is in violent disagreement, unofficially as yet but plainly enough to indicate the official disagreement which will be made known later.

The United States, which has urged patiently observance of treaties affecting the situation, is bound to be in agreement with the commission's report. To be otherwise would amount to inconsistency. For better or worse, the state department has placed this nation clearly on record in opposition to Japan's Manchurian policy.

It is difficult to comment on the reactions and attitudes of the other great powers. As members of the League of Nations, they are sponsors of a report unfavorable to Japan. As separate powers, their reactions are more favorable. Significantly, it was the United States, not a member of the league, which took the lead in warning Japan against its Manchurian campaign. For commercial reasons, Great Britain and France played the role of followers.

What should be the future course of the United States in view of the present set of circumstances? Apparently, the League of Nations, hard pressed by the most difficult problem it has faced, has made the content of the report known more than a month in advance of the date set for formal consideration, in order that it may profit by knowledge of national reactions. This nation's attitude will be considered carefully.

The state department has little choice in the matter It must signify approval of the tone of the Lytton commission's report, which is mildly condemnatory There is no need to go further than that. Disposition of the report is a League of Nations problem. The United States has done everything in its power to maintain treaties to which it is interested It has pointed the way for the League of Nations. Now it is time for the league to demonstrate its own sincerity and effectiveness.

Peace in Brazil.

Coffee importers breathed more easily this week. The Brazilian revolution that has had them walking on upturned tacks since early in July is all over but the decriminations, and they are expected to be light.

Surrender of rebel leaders means more than appears on the surface It is another step in the forward progress of Brazilian government Any other group of revolutionists will think twice before they take up arms to march against constituted authority

The situation which now has been cleared up was similar to that which would exist in the United States if a revolt against the government of Ohio were to be started It there was a possibility that it might be successful, federal troops would be pressed into service As more and more citizens were drawn into the conflict, the normal course of industry would be checked neighboring states would become more apprehensive and the repercussion would be felt in all parts of the world

That is approximately what happened in the state of Sao Paulo, richest in the Brazilian union of 20 states. Although Brazilian states have retained more of the rights of self government to themselves than the states of this union, federal troops were called in The revolt collapsed, It is interesting to note, when the rebels lost the support of the commander of Sao Paulos own soldiers. It was literally a civil war

While conditions were unsettling normal movement of coffee exports from Santos, world's greatest coffee port, was impossible American coffee cups began to hold a more precious fluid continuation of the revolution might make it too expensive to use on ordinary occasions But there may be a silver lining—even in a revolution Brazil has accomplished by shooting what it couldn't do by bargaining it has raised the price of coffee Civil war in Sao Paulo may not have been such a bad idea after all

Bethany Gets Serious.

Bethany college's decision to make its athletic contests free shows for one and all will set more than one athletic director to wondering what kind of a dirty joke the purists will play on college athletes next There never was any intention of carrying the anti-commercialization movement to such an extremity

But the reasoning back of Bethany's move is as sound as the thing Bethany undergraduates are encouraged to learn in the classrooms. The college's friends are the people the institution aims to please If they are interested enough in Bethany teams to want to see them play the college should reciprocate the interest by holding open house

Such reasoning can apply, for obvious reasons, only to institutions unhampered by burdensome overhead expenses. Bethany, having little to gain by standing at the gate with its hand out to collect can afford to extend a hand in greeting and forget about collections It has no huge stadium to pay for, its athletes play for sport and dear old Bethany, and it's coach's name is unknown outside his own professional circle

The good example it is setting won't be followed widely But considering the balance between good will and the meager gate receipts of small colleges, the average person will be willing to offer congratulations—particularly if that average person lives within easy driving range of the Bethany campus. If the first college team to offer free amusement can disprove the belief that what is free is bound to be second-rate, it will be playing before the biggest crowds it ever saw

Comment of the Press

OUST THE ROAD HOG.

The term 'road hog' has been used to describe drivers of autos and trucks who disregard rules of the road and refuse to show ordinary courtesy of the highway to other drivers. Fortunately they are not numerous but only a small number is needed to interfere with the many who drive with care In Pennsylvania a few of the road hogs are driving trucks and so much complaint has been developed the state motor truck association has established a school for all drivers.

This is an instance where a few who disregard the law are making trouble for the many who heed the law. When the motor bus lines were established the managers trained their drivers and they give the other driver a fair chance to travel in safety The truck driver can be a terrible sinner when he turns road hog, as the size and weight of his truck makes helpless the driver of a small car If the motor truck organizations will dismiss road hog drivers they will do much to save themselves from just censure and at the same time make a large contribution to traffic safety—Ohio State Journal.

A DANGER IN ENDOWMENTS.

It is the custom to applaud heartily the motives of those philanthropic persons who leave vast sums at their death to various charitable purposes. No doubt these bequests in many instances are admirable not only in motive but in the results they bring about But all too often we read of the sentimental gifts of stupendous sums for purposes which are not worthy of the value of these benefactions.

An aged lady will leave $5 000 for the care of a pet dog which has a life expectation of two years. A sentimental person will bequeath $50,000 for a perpetual foundation to campaign against some social evil which is shortly eliminated by the normal trend of evolution. Another will provide generously for research to cure a disease which is conquered in a decade. Bequests to universities sometimes are conditioned by a clause which prevents their use in any intelligible subject, and requires the continuance of courses which have lost their meaning

In every case there is a false assumption that the person leaving a sum in perpetuity is wise enough to know what future generations will need, what their faults will be, and how they should meet the problems of their time But no person is as wise as that. Indeed, it is difficult to administer a large endowment in one's own generation with complete assurance that it is wisely spent

A few philanthropists, notable the late Julius Rosenwald, have realized this flaw in the science of giving as it has been practiced. They specify in their philanthropies that both interest and principal must be spent within a limited period of years possibly 15 or 20, but in any event less than a generation

A wider observance of this precedent would be desirable from every point of view. Otherwise we shall witness in future years a tremendous piling up of productive wealth—the ownership of railways and factories and lands controlled wholly by the whims of persons long dead, or divorced from usefulness by the shortsightedness of the givers.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Hoover As Viewed by a Farmer-Senator

The following editorial appeared in Capper's Weekly, widely circulated among the nation's farmers The writer is Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, farm authority and publisher of farm journals, among them The Ohio Farmer.

IT SEEMS to be a true commentary on history in general that the peoples of most nations have usually been slow to recognize great leaders in the times of crisis that brought them forth In our own short history, we know that Lincoln much criticized and humiliated believed he could not be elected to a second term, although he was reelected Cleveland was scandalously abused, even by his own party Roosevelt received more recognition while in office than most Presidents but probably was not appreciated at his worth during his lifetime and it still is disputed whether Woodrow Wilson will or will not be classed as a great President

In the White House at the present time the country has a man who is not a spectacular President. President Hoover as I know him is too honest to be a grandstander He has courage and backbone plus His knowledge of world affairs, of our own affairs probably is surpassed by no other American But he does not show off He does not burn any red fire He doesn't put on any sort of show or stunt. He simply works at his job just as we work at ours, only longer and harder than most of us Party politicians have always complained that Hoover never has tried to 'sell' himself to the country They want him to dramatize himself as they call it do some posing before the public once in a while as some pretty good Presidents have done to show us they were Presidents and get a hand when perhaps they needed it.

Not so with Hoover.

There has been drama enough in his life goodness knows. He has met and overcome more appalling difficulties in the last 18 years than some of the great figures in history The present occupant of the White House has done plenty of things to entitle him to the limelight, before during and since the war. But he takes these things as a matter of course in his methodical matter-of-fact way. He cannot or will not pose.

* * *

So recently as the last nine months, Hoover has been our pilot through a series of tremendous national emergencies. Two of these emergencies were unprecedented We have never seen their like before One of them threatened the total collapse and impoverishment of this nation It came after economic distress and credit prostration, resulting in panics, had brought about revolutions in 20 countries Three-quarters of the population of the globe was affected

The whole world had been shaken. Not one country escaped and it was our turn.

At one of the gravest moments of our own uncertainty some of our good men and true became alarmed then frightened then lost their heads. But the President kept his

At a White House conference of Republicans and Democrats from both houses of congress now nearly a year ago President Hoover virtually made known his entire program of financial and economic relief

It is when you see a man in action day after day under stress, as I have seen Hoover that you really come to know him for what he is

The critical moment I have in mind was when winter was upon us last year millions of men were out of work, our public revenues had nearly dried up To a large extent private incomes also had disappeared Then foreign countries began withdrawing more than 2 000 million dollars from the United States This included one billion dollars of our gold reserve Where was it going to stop? Fear seized the people, they took more than 1 500 million dollars of their savings from the banks and hid the money

The storm was worldwide, an after-war collapse, which, in our case followed a colossal wave of stock market speculation and gambling. That only made it the worse for us

Many of us are only now beginning to appreciate how the President met all this with what may truly be called "the most gigantic program of economic defense and counter-attack" ever evolved in our history Had the President failed us had he weakened, it is not too much to say there would not be a bank open in America today. The whole economic and industrial fabric of the country would have been wrecked or paralyzed and we ourselves would have gone down in the wreck

Critics to be sure have been free to criticize They criticized even more in Lincoln's time. But they have been extremely backward in proposing any plans of their own They have had little to offer except criticism.

During those trying months no one saw Hoover flinch or tremble His courage and backbone were of the kind called for by the occasion He stood grimly at his post. He stood over congress for eight months with his program that has saved us—until his patience and persistence won Until, as William Allen White puts it, he won more than any other President ever won in any other eight months." It was legislative leadership "unmatched in American history

During these crucial eight months the President had to resort to heroic measures to block the famous Garner 'pork barrel bill' The Garner bill would have compelled us to tax ourselves for more than 3 000 millions of dollars for thousands of unneeded postoffices and for an enormous number of unremunerative public enterprises During this time also President Hoover succeeded in cutting down national expenditures more than 900 million dollars Imagine what it would have meant to the country to put 4 000 million dollars more on the tax bill this year! Hoover saved us that a saving too enormous to comprehend

Only recently has the President told us the story of those eight months in his own way in his speech of acceptance Mark Sullivan, the big orian and political writer, finds nothing like it in all our history He calls this address the most unvarnished, straightforward state paper of its kind ever written Hoover's honest frankness sticks out all over it.

In this document, the earnestness, the determination, the devotion of the President to the country is evident. But it is the plainest kind of talk. I do not believe anyone can read this acceptance address without being convinced of the true greatness of the man without having his faith renewed in American principles of government.

I am unable to find any good reason for dispensing with the services of such a President at such a time, to put in his place a man of less experience and far less attainment What great corporation would change its president under such circumstances? Would it be a wise move at this time for the people of the United States to turn over the entire administrative government of this nation to a lot of new and inexperienced hands?

There is a time-honored American adage of pioneer days which counsels us against swapping horses in midstream Our troubles are not over. We have got to rebuild, get to restore the entire country This is not the time to dispense with the services of the man who knows all about the biggest job of reconstruction that has confronted a President since Civil war times.

For 10 years Mr Hoover has had in mind a plan to simplify our entire system of national government. He has it all mapped out in a chart that can be understood at a glance But he has so constantly had to contend with emergencies that he has had to defer putting this plan into execution during his first term of office One of the last bills passed by congress gave the President authority to begin this work at the next session. Our last four Presidents have recognized the need of a drastic reform of this kind, but we have never before had a President who knew how to go about it.

So far as politics is concerned, the country may well face the facts. Herbert Hoover, tried by fire, tested by adversity, strengthened by responsibility, filled now by training and by responsibility, is the country's best bet in the four years of reconstruction that are ahead of us We cannot spare such a man at such a time.

MARION COUNTY.

Marion county is among those Ohio counties who have never given a governor to the state, but stands with the distinguished few which have given a President to the nation.

The others with this honor are Hamilton (no William H. Harrison and William H. Taft), Lake, Stark and Sandusky.

Marion county was named in honor of General Francis Marion of South Carolina, the "Swamp Fox" of the American Revolution Founders of the city of Marion chose the name They were Ebenezer Baker and Alexander Holmes, who owned the land there

The county lay in the path of U S troops marching to meet the British in the Northwest in the War of 1812. Three of two old military roads cut through at that time still are paved out

Except for the old fort that still stands as a relic of the past at St. Augustine, Florida, "Old Fort Marion" General Marion is nowhere more permanently memorialized than in Marion county, Ohio.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Don't Dread Weaning Baby.

The young mother has many things to learn She may be bewildered among other problems, with that of weaning the baby

Weaning often is made more difficult than is necessary, for when a definite schedule is followed it need not be a serious problem.

Under normal circumstances the weaning process should begin at about the eighth or ninth month It may be undertaken when the baby is three months, six months or nine months old but should never be delayed beyond this time.

Whenever possible it should be planned so as to avoid weaning in hot weather. It is more difficult for the baby to digest its food during the hot days, and there is more chance then of cow's milk becoming contaminated

Weaning should be a gradual process. It should never be done suddenly In certain cases, as in lack of mother's milk, acute illness of the mother or disease of the breast immediate weaning may be necessary Early weaning is advised, too when there is a continuous failure of the baby to gain in weight and the mother's milk is deficient in quality or in quantity.

Many baby specialists advise a daily bottle for every infant after the second month. This should be given as the afternoon feeding This arrangement provides a little more leisure for the mother and in the end makes weaning less difficult. If something should make sudden weaning necessary the infant, being accustomed to the daily bottle, quickly adjusts itself to the new routine.

Complete weaning should not take longer than four weeks Often it is difficult for the infant to become accustomed to the bottle, and such a case requires a great deal of patience on the part of the mother

There need be no alarm if the baby does take a little nourishment during the first few days of weaning When it becomes used to cow's milk the strength of the food to which it may be increased, but the increase should be gradual, because any sudden shift in the baby's diet may cause distress. The formula should only be altered by a physician's order

As the child grows older it should be encouraged to take its food from a small cup, which should be of a pleasing color and attractive to the infant.

The Physician's Supervision

Solid foods should be added to each feeding as soon as possible Cereal and egg may be fed to the infant as early as the third month

Cod liver oil should be given twice a day Start with a teaspoonful and increase the amount to a teaspoonful and a half in a day Orange juice or tomato juice should be included in the diet and is best given in the morning

To determine whether the baby is making satisfactory progress he should be weighed at regular intervals. Under-feeding is shown if the weight drops off and continues to fall. Over-feeding is a frequent cause of distress. Vomiting and repeated colicky attacks are often due to over-feeding.

Mothers reluctant to start weaning their babies should remember that weaning is a normal process that need cause no anxiety Needless delay weaning, because it makes it more difficult to accomplish as the baby grows older Proper weaning is done gradually and under the supervision of a physician is nothing to be dreaded.

BRUNNER ANSWERS ATTACK OF INGALLS

"I'm Flattered," Democratic Chief Says When Called "Real Governor."

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5—An attempt to befog the issues in the Ohio political campaign was charged against David S. Ingalls, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, by Henry G. Brunner, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, in a statement through his party's headquarters here.

The statement followed an assertion by Ingalls that Brunner "is the real governor of Ohio" and "makes up the governor's mind each day what should be done on important state matters."

Ingalls, Brunner commented, "flatters me by persisting in his attempt to make me an issue in this campaign. He should know by now that economy in state government—the demonstrated economy of Governor White against which Mr. Ingalls offers mythical economy—is the issue in the Ohio governorship campaign."

The Republican candidate, speaking at Circleville and Chillicothe, declared the governor's office "was being run from a Columbus hotel room," occupied by Brunner.

"I want to assure you," Ingalls said, "that if I am elected governor of Ohio, the affairs of state will be conducted in the state house. I shall not be dictated to by any one."

The beans were taken to the relief center in the Darbis street school building where they will be stored preparatory to being given to the needy.

CHILDREN'S CLOTHES NEEDED FOR RELIEF

Directors of Welfare Center Issue Plea; Men's Trousers Also Wanted.

An appeal for men's and boys' trousers of any size and for children's clothing was issued from the clothing commissary in the new city welfare center today as preparations were being made to open the clothing department in another two weeks.

Although all kinds of used clothing are wanted at the welfare center, there is an urgent need for trousers and clothing for children, it was pointed out.

Those in charge said they would be grateful to persons who put the clothing in useable condition before turning it over to the department. Otherwise, the clothing must be handled several times, cleaned and repaired before it can be distributed. Because of the number of garments to be handled, it is the hope of the department that it can distribute a majority of donated pieces of clothing without extensive repair or patching.

Shoes and hosiery for persons of all ages are much in demand, particularly for children, some of whom are unable to attend school because of lack of sufficient clothing and shoes.

MARION LODGEMEN TO ATTEND MEET

Gruber, captain, who returned from Columbus Monday night, announced the Chittenden hotel as headquarters for the Marion delegation. They also announced parking space for Marion cars had been obtained near the Y. M. C. A.

The delegation from the Tiffin lodge will join the Marion delegation here on Wednesday morning. The boys' band from the Junior Order American Mechanics Home at Tiffin, who will accompany the Tiffin delegation, will give a short concert on the courthouse esplanade.

My Beauty Hint

BY MARIAN NIXON

A GOOD posture is vitally important to beauty. A woman may have a beautiful face, but if her body is not in harmony with it the world will not notice her face.

My beauty hint is that you try to become posture-conscious. A poor posture is the shortest way to a sagging chin-line.

When walking, I hold my head up and keep my shoulders in line with my hips. If you walk as though you were carrying a weight on your head, it will assume the natural position in regard to your spine, I find.

"GOODBYE WASHBOARDS—FOREVER"—by C.A.Voight
LET'S FORGET THE MOVIES THIS AFTERNOON AND GO TO THE FREE DEMONSTRATION TO BE GIVEN BY THAT FAMOUS HOME EXPERT
I HATE TO MISS THAT PICTURE. WHAT'S THIS EXPERT GOING TO DEMONSTRATE?
OH, COOKING AND HOMEMAKING!—SHE'S GOING TO TELL ABOUT A HARD-WATER SOAP THAT WASHES CLOTHES WHITER WITHOUT SCRUBBING
—WELL, IF THERE'S A SOAP THAT WILL DO AWAY WITH WASHBOARD DRUDGERY I CERTAINLY WANT TO HEAR ABOUT IT —I'LL GO WITH YOU
AT THE LECTURE
NEVER SCRUB CLOTHES. THE MODERN WAY IS TO SOAK OUT THE DIRT. USE RINSO, THE SAFE HARD-WATER SOAP—ITS RICH, CREAMY SUDS SOAK CLOTHES WHITER, BRIGHTER THAN EVER
DID YOU HEAR THAT? JUST SOAKING CLOTHES IN RINSO WILL GET THEM WHITE AS SNOW!
INDEED I DID! AND I CAN HARDLY WAIT UNTIL NEXT WASHDAY TO TRY IT—
NEXT WASHDAY
I LEARNED ABOUT A NEW KIND OF SOAP LAST WEEK—RINSO. SEE HOW SNOWY IT GOT THE CLOTHES; AND I DIDN'T HAVE TO SCRUB OR BOIL
THAT'S GREAT! AND YOU DON'T LOOK A BIT TIRED
AND—
Read what famous expert says:
"That women who attend our Home Economics Service Schools like to be up-to-the-minute in everything they do. For example, very few of them scrub or boil clothes any more. They know from our demonstrations and from their own experience that Rinso is the safe and modern way to get clothes snowy and bright without the use of washboard or boiler. That is why we advise them all to use Rinso in tub, washer, and dishpan. Its thick, creamy suds save time and work—and make all household cleaning much easier."
HOME ECONOMICS SERVICE SCHOOLS
Don't miss the coming demonstration under. And be sure to get Rinso in time for next washday. Cup for cup, it gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps—uses no more. No softener needed.
Rinso
The hard-water soap that's so easy on hands
Wonderful home-making lecture—don't be late!
The Marion Star Expert, Ruth Campbell, will continue her demonstration at The Star Auditorium Tomorrow and Friday at 2:00 P. M.

"Wanderer returned?" she said

"No," said Nan

Rosamund drew at her cigaret.

"He's not here Did you think he was""

Nan said, "No" again in the same quiet voice

Rosamund laughed

"I haven't seen him and I haven't got him here And if you'll take my advice you'll stop hunting round after him Good Lord, my dear! This is the twentieth century and a man does occasionally go away for 24 hours without taking his whole family with him""

"Yes" said Nan— Ferdinand said that too

"It's bound to be true if Ferdinand said it" Her voice was insolent Then suddenly she curbed it "I know Jervis pretty well and if you want my advice—which I don't suppose you do—I should say let sleeping dogs lie"

She had remained standing A long window let in a brilliant panel of sunshine which slanted to her feet Nan was standing too She came a little nearer and said,

"Do you know where Jervis is?"

Rosamund's beautiful eyebrows rose

"That's a little crude, isn't it?"

"Yes," said Nan "I'm not worrying about being crude—I'm worrying about Jervis If he's all right he may be anywhere he likes and he may be with any one he likes If you know where he is, will you tell me?"

"I've told you that I don't know

"Yes said Nan, "But you keep hinting that you do I should be very glad if you would stop hinting and say what you mean'

Rosamund gave a short laugh

"I don't mean anything If I'm to be quite candid, I think you're making a fuss Men will go off on their own—and, knowing Jervis I should say there'll be the devil to pay when he finds out that you've been sending the town-crier round after him'

"Yes, said Nan She fixed her steady eyes on Rosamund 'You say men go off—but do they generally go in the middle of the night without any luggage?'

Something odd happened but it happened so quickly that it would have been difficult to swear to Nan had only an impression that Rosamund had begun to say something and that before the words reached her lips the cigaret which she was holding slipped sideways so that the red-hot tip burnt her finger It was just an impression

The cigaret slipped and Rosamund said

"Didn't he take any luggage" Then she went on without waiting for an answer "That doesn't mean very much—does it?"

Nan said "I don't know"

'Do you want me to dot the 'i's? I don't mind if you don't."

"I would like you to say what you mean"

Rosamund laughed again

'Perhaps he picked up what he wanted in New York"

'No, said Nan

"You've been ringing them up?"

"Yes said Nan

Rosamund blew a smoke-ring

"There is an alternative of course If a man pays the rent of a flat, he very often keeps some things there'

"You don't seem to have a very high opinion of Jervis," said Nan

Rosamund shrugged her shoulders.

"I don't expect him to be a plaster saint. If you do, I'm afraid you're going to get a good many jolts If I had married him, I should have been quite philosophical about that sort of thing—but of course I never pretended to be in love with him" The stress on the "I" was of the slightest, but it was there.

Nan's color rose a little She kept her voice quiet.

"You are trying to make me believe something that you don't believe yourself. I'm wondering why"

The ash fell from Rosamund's cigaret. It made a dusty patch on the fine primrose linen of her dress.

"Would you rather believe that he was drowned?"

The color in Nan's cheeks drained away. Her voice did not change.

"It's not a question of what either of us would rather believe—it's a question of the facts. I want to know what is true."

Rosamund stood with her hands behind her.

"You're very detached," she said "Well then, here are your facts. Twice this summer, while we were bathing together, Jervis had cramps pretty badly. The last time I had to help him in. I don't think he'd have got in if he'd been alone Well—you would have it you know"

A little more color ebbed away Nan said

'Is that true"'

'Certainly

"Then the servants would know about it

'If you think Jervis would be likely to go round telling people that sort of thing—'

'Did you tell any one about it"'

"Why should I" I didn't particularly want to make Jervis wild with me just then."

'I see Then nobody knew about this cramp but you"'

'And Jervis" said Rosamund

"Yes of course Jervis would know if he had had cramp," said Nan

She watched Rosamund's face but it showed nothing The sun dazzled behind her

"You can't tell me anything else?"

"I'm afraid not. Ring me up if you hear anything

"Yes' said Nan "I'll ring you up when he gets back'

She said 'Good bye Rosamund, and turned and walked out of the room.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Ronald Tells the Rescuers, While Awaiting the Signal of Dicky's Plane, of a Strange Premonition That Led Him to Join Them.

I COULD not repress a shiver as Hugh Grantland gave the instructions to Brock for the attack upon the farmhouse, where Marion and Carolyn were imprisoned There was a cool deadliness about these instructions that presaged ill for anyone opposing the men bent upon the rescue

True he had given no instructions for murderous weapons The men gathered ready for the attack were to 'silence' the sentinels but I knew that he meant just that and no more The weapons to be wielded by the attackers were axes and sledge hammers for the doors and windows and tear gas bombs for anyone resisting the entry of the rescuers

But, in his planning I told myself with terrified tremors, he had taken no account of possible opposition Patently he was confidently counting upon the surprise element in the attack Thanks to the efficiency of Brock and Wynne, every sentinel planted through the woodland around the shack had been surprised, disarmed, thoroughly gagged and trussed and left in secluded nooks where no harm could come to them, and where they would have no opportunity to get back to the shack and tell the inmates of the men advancing to the rescue of the imprisoned girls

We knew that, at the noise of Dicky's plane passing over the house, Marion and Carolyn in accordance with the code note Marion's cleverness had caused her brother to receive, would barricade their door and window and lie down on the floor in corners where there would be the least chance of being hit by bullets if there were gun fire. With danger to them thus eliminated, the rescuers would not be hampered in their attack, and I felt confident that Hugh was justified in his belief that the whole thing would be over in five minutes

And yet there were so many things which could happen at the last minute Suppose Hugh was mistaken about those doors and windows of the farmhouse? Suppose that, in accordance with the accounts of the customs of bandit warfare, those doors were of iron and the windows impregnably barred" What price axes and sledge hammers then? And even if they did manage to smash them, the kidnapers would be warned—and armed

Harry's Question

My imagination traveled even further Suppose the girls were not able to carry out their plan of barricading their room" Marion in her code note had seemed sure that they would be left alone after supper until bedtime and that if Dicky and the men on the ground arrived early enough there would be no obstacle to her plan of barring their door and window with the furniture of the room in which they were imprisoned

But I could think of a dozen things which might happen to upset her plan And if they did not succeed in barricading themselves or if the rescuers were delayed in getting into the house, I knew, from dread tales of gangsters ways that the rescuers might reach the girls only to find them slain

So absorbed was I in my own tremors that I did not hear Brock's reply to Hugh I awoke to what was going on around me only when Harry Underwood struck into the conversation

"You sure have everything covered Now, all we have to do is to wait for the noise of the Dicky-bird's ship Not so?"

'That is right," Hugh said

'Then can't we take a minute or two off and give this lad the chance to tell us why he was trailing us when he was supposed to be at the hotel?"

Ronald's Premonition

There was a hint of sternness in Harry's voice I knew it was the reaction of an older man toward what he considered the desertion of a post by a younger one That Ronald caught it, I knew by the way his head went back and his whole body stiffened

"Honestly sir, I didn't leave my mother until Mrs Underwood said there was no use staying if I felt I must get out here You see, the doctor had to give my mother a powerful hypodermic after you left, and he said she wouldn't wake up until morning, so Mrs. Underwood said there was no possible need of two people staying"

He drew a deep breath, as if gathering courage and then rushed on

I didn't tell Mrs Underwood the real reason why I felt as if I'd die if I didn't get out here," the boyish voice went on. "I was afraid I would frighten her But about 10 minutes before I felt the queerest feeling came over me I just felt as if I could hear Marion's voice calling me, 'Ronald! Help me' It was just as plain as if she had been in the same room with me

I'll bet you're a good cook, Janet.
No, Al says my pie crust gives him indigestion.
Why Janet, are you using a cheap shortening? Why don't you change to Crisco?
I think I will try Crisco. It's a digestible fat.

. . . Do you know WHICH BAKING POWDER is an actual aid to HEALTH

ALL good baking powders leaven, some better than others. All have ingredients sanctioned by law, and must maintain certain standards in manufacture. But RUMFORD the pure all-phosphate BAKING POWDER has certain definite characteristics which only a pure all-phosphate baking powder can have. One of the most important is that Rumford adds real food value wherever it is used, either in baking or in general cooking. As all housewife-cooks know, this is very important, especially in the diet of growing children.
